This 200-level lecture-based, multimedia class, based on John Norman's "Fire Officer's Handbook of Tactics" (3d. ed.) is designed for those aspiring to supervisory ranks, and for those with an interest in deepening their knowledge base with respect to basic fireground tactics, which are then applied to specific fire event types such as single family dwellings, commercial occupancies, multiple residential structures, high rises, buildings under construction and more.

Your instructors are Deputy Chief Scott Cullers of Loudoun County Fire & Rescue, a 34 year veteran of the fire service, and Battalion Chief Chuck Ryan of Fairfax County Fire & Rescue, a 17 year fire service veteran. Scott and Chuck have team-taught this course for the past four years. Scott teaches on Monday evenings at the Loudoun County Fire Academy. Chuck's section meets on Thursday eves at the Fairfax Fire & Rescue Training Academy. The same content is covered in each session, affording shift personnel the option of attending the most convenient section each week.
